

SHOPPING IN THE MARKET

The stalls at the market are full of beautiful, fresh goods. At one stall there were five people waiting in the cue. With the help of the statements find out the order of the people and what fruit and vegetables they bought.

- Mrs. Smith was served before Mrs. Taylor. The second client bought cherries, right after the client who bought apricots. The next client did not buy any raspberries. The last client purchased kohlrabi.
- In the row the male and female customers alternated.
- Carrots and apricots were bought by the same person. Mrs. Black bought red currants for her grandchild. At the Taylors' there will be peas for lunch today.
- The customer who bought green pepper did not buy either raspberries or strawberries.
- Mr. Miller was served before the other male customer.
